The Track and Field Athlete of the Century According to the Statistics

Foreword

This book, which is meant as a reference for sport reporters and other enthusiasts, attempts to answer the perpetual question: who is the best Track and Field athlete in the world through times? Normally, the deciding factor has been the results from competitions as well as different panels' "I think" opinions. However, rarely did the era's best athletes compete at the same time. Olympics, the most prestigious competition, is only held every four years, and this time period has been interrupted by wars. Furthermore, boycotts, injuries, and the high level of qualifying competitions (mostly in the USA) have kept many real top athletes away from the competitions.

The name of the book, The Track and Field Athlete of the Century According to the Statistics, states the criteria used in this book. The procedure is simple. The top ten athletes in yearly statistics are taken in Olympic categories (no relays); the athlete in the first position receives ten points and the tenth one point; the athlete with the most points is the best. This method enables the comparison of athletes from different eras and events because the result does not affect the ranking, but rather the position within the top ten. The foundation of this book is the results from 1911 to 2000 (worldwide statistics do not exist from the first decade). The improvement of the facilities and training methods and the professionalism of sports have improved results; consequently, the results from the beginning of the century are not directly comparable with the results at the end of the century.

The book shows the best athletes for each decade according to their events as well as a combined statistics—the same athlete has placed in the top ten in several different events—and a summary by countries. Finally all the athletes of the century and the countries that have placed their athletes in the top ten yearly statistics are shown. The book also includes lists of the "all time best" of each decade, as well as Olympic and World Championship results of the athletes who received medals, and the progress of World Records. The results of walking events are not included in the statistics because only results for a couple of decades were available. The women's results are also absent since the current Olympic events only have results for a few years.

The database needed for the gathering of information as well as calculating combined statistics and points has been designed and carried out by Pirjo Savolainen.

I want to thank Gerard Leconte, who has greatly helped me in the making of this book. Without his input, statistics from 1911 to 1920 would have been deficient.

I welcome any comments or corrections, especially additions to my data.

Matti Koponen

Unfortunately Matti Koponen passed away after suffering from a serious illness, and he did not get to see his data converted into a book. Based on Matti's original outline, I have continued his work to the best of my ability. However, some changes were required because the headings on the database did not correspond to the headings in his original outline. I have changed the headings of the outline to the ones in the database, and I hope the users find the needed information even if the headings are not the ones used by the experts in this area. Because the book contains all the statistics Matti had completed, it may be that some information is duplicated under different headings. In the completed book there are many more "statistics of the century" than in Matti's original outline; however, since I am not an expert in the field, I did not want to leave any information out.

References

Unfortunately the list of references is not available due to the author's death. Matti Koponen's personal library contained hundreds of books that have been donated to sport enthusiasts. It is not known which of these books were used as references. Newspaper articles from several different countries as well as personal collections were also used.
